

Summary :

Member of the dynasty of the Grand Komnenoi and emperor of Trebizond (1349/50-1390). Alexios III Grand Komnenos rose to the throne after a long period of exile in Constantinople. The first year of his reign were marked by rebellions and conspiracies. He was confronted with a number of external threats, such as the Turcoman attacks, which he successfully handled with his intermarriage policy, and the rivalry between the Genoese and Venetian merchants. He died in 20 March 1390.

Other Names

John Komnenos, Kaloioannes, Grand Komnenos, Komnenos Alexios III, Angelos Doukas

Date and Place of Birth

October 5, 1338, Trebizond

Date and Place of Death

March 20, 1390, Trebizond

Main Role

Emperor of Trebizond (1349/50-1390)

1. Biography

1.1. Prosopography

Alexios III Grand Komnenos was born on October 5, 1338.¹ His real name was John; however, after his rise to the throne he was renamed Alexios, in honour of his grandfather Alexios II Grand Komnenos. He was the second son of Emperor Basil Grand Komnenos (1332-1340) and of Irene of Trebizond, a member of an aristocratic family of Trebizond. He was also the brother of Alexios Komnenos, Theodora Grand Komnene and Maria Grand Komnene. He married Theodora Kantakouzene Komnene, the niece of the Byzantine Emperor John VI Kantakouzenos (1348/1354-1357), and had seven children: Anna, Basil, the future Emperor Manuel III Grand Komnenos (1390-1417), Eudokia and three more daughters, whose names are not known. He also had an illegitimate son, Andronikos. His wedding to Theodora Kantakouzene took place on 28 September 1351 in the katholikon of the monastery of St Eugenios.

On January 21, 1350 John became emperor under the name Alexios III, having returned to Trebizond from Constantinople after a long period of exile.² He died on 20 March 1390.

1.2. Reign

During his reign Alexios III Grand Komnenos was confronted with the internal conflict and the civil wars between the aristocratic families of Trebizond, tormenting the Empire since the reign of Irene Palaiologina (1340-1341), first wife of Alexios' father, Basil Grand Komnenos (1332-1340). Alexios was unable to overpower the two fighting groups and chose to approach each of them in turn, depending on the circumstances, while often arresting members of the opposing family.

He also encountered the external threats that were the result of the rivalry between the Venetian and the Genoese merchants, as well as the attacks of the Turcomans on the lands of the Empire.

Alexios III was also a great patron of the school of higher education in Trebizond and of many churches and monasteries of the area. He also restored the walls of the city and of many regional fortresses.

2. The rise to the throne

The Trapezuntine aristocracy was represented mainly by two families, the Scholarios, with their Constantinopolitan alliances, and the native Amytzantarios family. After the death of Basil Grand Komnenos (1332-1340) on April 6, 1340, the two families took advantage of the void in power and the lack of a legitimate heir; what is more, Basil's first legal wife, Irene Palaiologina (1340-1341) was having difficulty to enforce her authority. Other families, such as Kabasitai, Meizomates, Doranitai and Tzanichites were also involved in the internal conflict.

In August 1340, John – the future Alexios III Grand Komnenos – together with his mother and older brother were sent in exile to Constantinople. On December 22, 1349, after Michael Grand Komnenos (1344-1349) abdicated the throne,³ Alexios and his mother Irene of Trebizond returned to Trebizond, aiming to claim the Trebizondian throne peacefully, with the support of John VI Kantakouzenos. Alexios was admitted into the city by the people and the noblemen and was crowned on January the 21 of the following year in the katholikon of the monastery of St Eugenios. After his enthronement he forced Michael Grand Komnenos to become a monk in the rock-cut monastery of St Sabbas.

3. Internal affairs

3.1. Revolts – conspiracies

From the very first year of his reign, Alexios III Grand Komnenos attempted to contain the political unrest, caused by the animosity between the aristocratic families of Trebizond; he often allied himself with one or the other family or pursued their members. In June 1350⁴ he arrested the megas stratopedarches Theodore Doranites, also called Pilelis, and the protovestiarios Constantine Doranites, as well as other members of the same family. They were incarcerated for a short period of time in a prison especially arranged for members of the aristocracy. However, his actions did not dissuade the ambitious aristocracy, who kept conspiring against the emperor.

In January 1351, Leo Kabasites organised a conspiracy against Alexios III. The emperor arrested Kabasites and replaced him with Pileles, who had been freed in the meantime. Shortly afterwards Pilelis revolted once again, occupying Trebizond's acropolis, known as the castle of Koulas; he even captured the megas doux Niketas Scholares. However, this new attempt met an unsuccessful end, since it was not backed up by the people. The conspirators were arrested and imprisoned in the castle of Kegchrinas; a year later, in 1352, they were executed. At that time, the emperor, feeling insecure due to the continuous revolts, moved to Tripolis.

In September 1351 Alexios III's mother was placed in charge of a mission against Constantine Doranites in Limnia, while in April 1352 the emperor's relations with the pinkernes John Tzanichites were restored; only a few months earlier, in January,⁵ Tzanichites had occupied the fortress of Tzanicha. In May 1355 the emperor marched against the megas doux Niketas Scholares. Scholares had assisted the emperor against the Doranites earlier, but he had gathered his own powerful forces after the events of June 1350 and eventually revolted in June 1354, occupying Cerasous. Niketas Scholares also attempted to attack the city of Trebizond by sea, helped by his son and the protovestiarios Basil Choupakis. In May 1355 Alexios III Grand Komnenos took over Cerasous, however he was not able to capture the rebels, who fled to the castle of Kegchrinas. At the same time Michael Grand Komnenos (1344-1349) made an unsuccessful attempt to reclaim the throne. In October 1356 the emperor ordered the megas domestikos Meizomates and the megas stratopedarches Michael Sampson to march against Kegchrinas and capture Scholares and his followers.

The strain in the relations between the emperor and the aristocracy was evident when the Kabasitai and George Scholares attempted to murder Alexios III Grand Komnenos at the river of St Gregory in Katabatos, on October 27, 1363.⁶ The Kabasites were captured but George Scholares escaped to Amisos; the bishop of Trebizond Nephon was confined to the monastery of Soumela, as an accomplice to the conspiracy.

In 1371, Alexios III issued a chrysobull, which returned to George Doranites the revenues of the village Chorobe; it was an attempt to make amends and indicate that he wished to put an end to the civil strife.

3.2. Imperial patronage

Alexios III Grand Komnenos was the benefactor of many churches and monasteries in the area of Pontos and in mainland Greece. In 1362 he restored and decorated with frescoes the church of St Phokas, the katholikon of the Kordyle monastery, which he himself had founded. In the period 1360-1365 he restored the Soumela monastery, while in 1364 he issued a chrysobull according to the monastery benefits, people who could live and work as paroikoi and estates. He also donated an icon of the Virgin Mary, in the iconographic type of the Unfading Rose (Rhodon to Amaranton).⁷ In 1365 he issued a chrysobull donating estates to the monastery of St George Choutouras,⁸ while in 1374 he founded the monastery of St Dionysios on Mount Athos. The monk Dionysios provided financial support for the construction of the monastery on behalf of the Emperor Alexios III, along with the annual sum of 1000 silver coins. In 1376, Alexios decorated with frescoes the katholikon of the monastery of Panagia Theoskepastos, possibly after the death of his son Andronikos and his burial there. In 1378 he constructed the monastery of St Laurentios in Pelion and in 1386 he gave privileges to the monastery of Vazelon by chrysobull. Representations of Alexios III adorn the katholikon of the monastery of Soumela, of the monastery of St. Eugenios and the narthex of the church of the monastery of Panagia Theoskepastos.

During the reign of Alexios III Komnenos the school of higher education in Trebizond prospered, under the personal interest and benefaction of the emperor himself. Under Alexios III, the Empire of Trebizond in general went through a period of prosperity and fruition, especially after the end of the internal strife and the successful eradication of external threats.

4. Alexios III confronted by the Turcomans

Alexios III Grand Komnenos made consistent and arduous efforts to regain the areas of the Empire occupied by the Turcoman emirs, but also to secure the Empire's borders against the attacks of its neighbours, who constantly threatened it during his reign.

In August 1355 Sorogaina was freed by the duke of Chaldia, John Kabasites. On November 27, 1356 and again during 1373, the emperor unsuccessfully marched against Cherieane. On November 11, 1357 the Empire of Trebizond was attacked by Ibrahim Haçi emir in the area of Palaioimatrouka. In 1360, while the emperor was constructing the castle of Koukos in Chaldia, he was attacked by the Turcoman emir, Hoça Latif, who forced him to stop the construction. Hoça Latif unsuccessfully turned against Matrouka the following year. In October 1361 the Turcoman Ahi Aynapak attacked the fortress of Golache and laid siege to it without success; the castle finally fell to the Turcomans in 1369.

In 1370 Alexios III Grand Komnenos defeated the Turcomans in the area of Marmara, while making arduous efforts to retain power in Limnia and to repel the Turcoman attacks. In February 1380 he successfully marched against the Tziapnid Turks with both military and naval forces. Still, Alexios III was failing to prevail over his Muslim neighbours, so he turned to marriage alliances as the fundament of his external policy.

5. Marriage alliances

5.1. Marriage alliances with Muslim rulers

Trying to keep at bay the Turcoman rulers and their aspirations against the Empire of Trebizond, Alexios III Grand Komnenos developed an external policy, based on marriage alliances between the female members of the dynasty of the Grand Komnenoi and the heirs of the Turcoman emirates. Through this diplomatic route, Alexios III managed to gain territorial security for his Empire but also to ensure that the trade routes remained open in the area of the Pontos, especially the towns of Paipert and Keltzene, while the ports remained under his control.

The first intermarriage took place in 1352, between the Amiot emir beğ and Alexios' sister, Maria Grand Komnene.⁹ The second marriage, in 1358, was between Ibrahim Haçi emir and Theodora Grand Komnene, sister of Alexios, after the Turcoman ruler's attack in Palaioimatrouka, in an effort to prevent a new attack. On 8 October 1379 the emir of Limnia Tacedin married Eudokia Grand Komnene, daughter of Alexios III,¹⁰ in exchange for the area of Limnia; Limnia was finally lost to the Kepnites in 1380. At some point after 1380 the Turcoman ruler of Paipert and Keltzene Muthharten married a daughter of Alexios III, and another daughter of his married Osman Karayuluk, son of Maria Grand Komnene and Kutlu beğ. It is also possible that a daughter of Alexios III married the emir of Chalybia, Suleyman Haçi emir.¹¹

5.2. Marriage alliances with Christian rulers

Alexios III Grand Komnenos applied the same policy of marriage alliances in his diplomatic communication with Christian rulers, aiming to preserve good relations and alliances. His widowed sister Theodora married the Byzantine Emperor John V Palaiologos (1355-1376),¹² while his daughter Anna was married to the king of Iberia (Georgia) Bagrat V (1360-1395) in 1367. His son Manuel III Grand Komnenos was married to Koukanhad, daughter of the king of Georgia David VII (1318-1360).¹³ Their marriage took place on September 6, 1377 and Alexios III was stephanokrator (he held the marriage wreaths over the heads of the newlyweds).

6. Alexios III confronted with the expansionary policy of Genoa and Venice

The rivalry between Venetian and Genoese merchants, which sometimes resulted in confrontations between them, was one of the most crucial external threats to the Empire, the two rivals often moving their hostilities on trapezuntine territories,¹⁴ as well as posing an economic threat.

In 1364 Venice sent William Michael to Alexios III demanding the concession of an area for their commercial quarter; with a chrysobull issued on the same year, they were granted the quarter between the area 'of St Theodore Gabras' and the coast, at the eastern suburbs of Trebizond.¹⁵ This move was a blow to the near monopoly of Genoa in the Black Sea and brought an immediate reaction from the Genoese merchants, who, at the time, had their quarter in the area between Leontokastron and Kaneta; one of the most violent reactions was a conflict during a feast in the main square of the city (meytan).¹⁶ In 1367, with a second chrysobull, Alexios III issued the Venetians with new commercial privileges and duty reductions; they were also allowed to expand their quarter into the city of Trebizond and build their own castle. Alexios III even promised to cover the expenses for the construction of an enclosure and a tower. However, this castle remained unfinished, since in 1368 Venice failed to send the necessary funds for its completion.

This renewal of good relations between the Empire of Trebizond and Venice was proved superficial, as shows the hostility between the natives and the Venetians; it was further intensified by Alexios III's efforts to impose his authority upon the Venetian merchants and his later recall of the privileges given to them by the chrysobulls of 1364 and 1367. The Venetians were further aggravated by new taxation, resulting to debts and financial losses, caused by their competition with the local traders. They repeatedly sent letters to the emperor demanding compensation and in November 1375 they organised a campaign aiming to dethrone him, led by Marco Giustiniani da S. Polo. In the end, military action against Alexios III was prevented in favour of peaceful negotiations, where the leaders of the campaign demanded compensation for the Venetians' losses and reduction of taxes. The new treaty, signed between the emperor and the Venetian merchants, also provided that the emperor's debt to Venice would be reduced by half.¹⁷

1. This opinion is expressed by the editors of the Prosopographisches Lexicon der Palaiologenzeit. See Κομνηνός Αλέξιος III. Άγγελος Δούκας, Prosopographisches Lexicon der Palaiologenzeit 5, no 12083 (Wien 1981), pp. 223-224. Nicol places the birth of Emperor Alexios III Grand Komnenos in 1340. See Nicol, D. M., The byzantine family of Kantakouzenos, ca. 1100-1460. A Genealogical and Prosopographical Study (Washington D.C. 1968), p. 144.

2. In 1340, after the death of Emperor Basil Grand Komnenos, his former wife Irene entered the palace and took reign of the Empire. Basil's widow, Irene of Trebizond, and her two sons Alexios and John (Alexios III) were sent in exile to Constantinople. See Χρύσανθος Φιλίππιδης, μητροπολίτης Τραπεζούντος, «Η Εκκλησία Τραπεζούντος», Αρχαίον Πόντου 4-5 (Athens 1933), p. 237.
3. On 13 December 1349 Michael abdicated the throne due to illness, but also because of his inability to prevail over the internal turmoil tormenting the Empire. See Miller, W., Trebizond. The Last Greek Empire (London 1926), p. 55.
4. This view is argued by Bryer, see Bryer, A., "The Estates of the Empire of Trebizond. Evidence for their recourses, products, agriculture, ownership and location" Αρχαίον Πόντου 35 (1979), pp. 370-477. Bredenkamp places the arrest of the Doranites in June 1351. See Bredenkamp, F., "The Doranites family of the 14th century Byzantine Empire of Trebizond" Βυζαντιακά 19 (1999), p. 246.
5. See Λυμπερόπουλος, Β., Ο Βυζαντινός Πόντος. Η αυτοκρατορία της Τραπεζούντας (Athens 1999), p.168.
6. Bryer places the murder attempt against the emperor on October 26, 1363. See Bryer, A. – Winfield, D., The Byzantine Monuments and Topography of the Pontos I (Dumbarton Oaks Studies 20, Washington D.C. 1985), p. 327.
7. See Bryer, A. – Winfield, D., The Byzantine Monuments and Topography of the Pontos I (Dumbarton Oaks Studies 20, Washington D.C. 1985), p. 254.
8. On the authenticity of the chrysobull see Bryer, A. – Winfield, D., The Byzantine Monuments and Topography of the Pontos I (Dumbarton Oaks Studies 20, Washington D.C. 1985), p. 310.
9. On July 14, 1365 Alexios III received with great honours his daughter Maria and the emir Kutlu beg. In 1367 the emperor himself also visited the Muslim emir. See Bryer, A., "Greeks and Turkmens: The Pontic exception", Dumbarton Oaks Paper 29 (1975), p. 135.
10. The emir Taccedin had proposed to marry Eudokia, the daughter of Alexios III as early as 1363. However, the alliance was postponed due to negative popular reaction in Trebizond. For the reasons behind this reaction see Zachariadou, E. A., "Trebizond and the Turks (1352-1402)", Αρχαίον Πόντου 35 (1979), p. 346- Bryer, A., "Greeks and Turkmens: The Pontic exception", Dumbarton Oaks Paper 29 (1975), p. 136.
11. This view is suggested by Miller, W., Trebizond. The Last Greek Empire (London 1926), p. 64. Also see Nicol, D.M., The last Centuries of Byzantium (London 1972; repr. Cambridge 1997), p. 403.
12. The initial proposal involved John V's son and was discussed in Constantinople with the ambassadors sent by Alexios III Grand Komnenos: the protonotarios Michael Panaretos and the mezas logothetes George Scholares. Finally John V himself married Theodora Grand Komnene. See Miller, W., Trebizond. The Last Greek Empire (London 1926), pp. 68-69.
13. Initially Andronikos, the illegitimate son of Emperor Alexios, was supposed to marry the Georgian princess Koulikanhat. However, after Andronikos' death, the marriage was concluded between the princess and the future emperor, Manuel III. See Miller, W., Trebizond. The Last Greek Empire (London 1926), p. 64.
14. In August 1352 Venetian ships arrived in Trebizond and attacked the Genoese ships anchored in the town's port. See Λυμπερόπουλος, Β., Ο Βυζαντινός Πόντος. Η αυτοκρατορία της Τραπεζούντας (Athens 1999), p. 222.
15. For the exact geographical position of the region given to the Venetian merchants and the many opinions expressed see Bryer, A. – Winfield, D., The Byzantine Monuments and Topography of the Pontos I (Dumbarton Oaks Studies 20, Washington D.C. 1985), p. 203.
16. Zakythinis, D. A. (ed.), Le Chrysobulle d'Alexis III Comnene, Empereur de Trébizonde en faveur des Venitiens (Paris 1932), pp. 34-35.
17. Λυμπερόπουλος, Β., Ο Βυζαντινός Πόντος. Η αυτοκρατορία της Τραπεζούντας (Athens 1999), p. 232.

Bibliography :

	Λυμπερόπουλος Β.Χ. , Ο Βυζαντινός Πόντος. Η Αυτοκρατορία της Τραπεζούντας (1204-1261), ο χώρος, οι άνθρωποι, η οικονομία , Αθήνα 1999
	Bryer A.A.M., Winfield D. , The Byzantine Monuments and Topography of the Pontos, I (With Maps and Plans by R. Anderson and Drawings by J. Winfield) , Washington D.C. 1985, Dumbarton Oaks Studies 20
	Hendy M.F. , Studies in the Byzantine Monetary Economy c. 300-1450 , Cambridge Mass. 1985

	Χρυσάνθος Φιλιππίδης, μητροπολίτης Τραπεζούντος , "Η Εκκλησία Τραπεζούντος", Αρχαίον Πόντου , 4/5, 1933, 1-1070
	Oikonomidès N. , "The Chancery of the Grand Komnenoi: Imperial Tradition and Political Reality", Αρχαίον Πόντου , 79, 1979, 299-332
	Zakythinos D. , Le Chrysobulle d'Alexis III Comnène, Empereur de Trébizonde en faveur des Venitiens , Paris 1932
	Nicol D.M. , The Byzantine Family of Kantakouzenos (Cantacuzenus) ca. 1100-1460. A Genealogical and Prosopographical Study , Washington 1968
	Janssens E. , Trébizonde en Colchide , Université Libre de Bruxelles, Bruxelles 1969, Travaux de la Faculté de Philosophie et Lettres XL
	Miller W. , Trebizond. The Last Greek Empire of the Byzantine Era, 1204-1461 , London 1926
	Bredenkamp F. , "The Doranites Family of the 14th Century Byzantine Empire of Trebizond", Βυζαντιακά , 19, 1999, 239-261
	Bryer A.A.M. , "Greeks and Türkmens: The Pontic Exception", Dumbarton Oaks Papers , 29, 1975, 113-149
	Bryer A.A.M. , "The Estates of the Empire of Trebizond. Evidence for their Resources, Products, Agriculture, Ownership and Location", Αρχαίον Πόντου , 35, 1979, 370-477
	Zachariadou E.A. , "Trebizond and the Turks (1352-1402)", Μαύρη Θάλασσα: 12ον Συμπόσιον Βυζαντινών Σπουδών (Birmingham, 18-20 Μαρτίου 1978) Αρχαίον Πόντου 35, Αθήνα 1979, 333-358
	Nicol D.M. , The Last Centuries of Byzantium, 1261-1453 , 2nd ed., Cambridge 1993
	Καρпов С.П. , Тραπεζундская империя и западноевропейские государства в XIII-XV вв. , Москва 1981
	Γεωργιάδης Θ. (επιμ.) , Εγκυκλοπαίδεια του Ποντιακού Ελληνισμού. Ο Πόντος. Ιστορία, Λαογραφία και Πολιτισμός, 1 , Θεσσαλονίκη 1991
	Λάμπρος Σπυρίδων , "Ανέκδοτον χρυσόβουλλον Αλεξίου Γ' του Μεγάλου Κομνηνού, αυτοκράτορος της Τραπεζούντος", Νέος Ελληνομνήμων , 2, 1905, 196-198
	Actes de Dionysiou , N. Oikonomidès (ed.), Archives de l'Athos IV, Paris 1968
	Bryer A.A.M. , "The Late Byzantine Monastery in Town and Countryside", Baker, D. (ed.), The Church in Town and Countryside , Oxford 1979, Studies in Church History 16, 219-241
	Kazhdan A., Talbot A.M. , "Alexios III Komnenus", A. Kazhdan, The Oxford Dictionary of Byzantium 1 , Oxford, New York 1991, 65
	Νικολούδης Ν. , "Αλέξιος Γ' Μέγας Κομνηνός", Εγκυκλοπαιδικό Προσωπογραφικό Λεξικό Βυζαντινής Ιστορίας και Πολιτισμού 1 , Αθήνα 1996, 245
	"Κομνηνός, Αλέξιος ΙΙΙ. Άγγελος Δούκας", E. Trapp, H. Beyer, I. Leontiades, Prosopographisches Lexikon der Palaiologenzeit , 5, Wien 1981, 223-224, αρ. 12083

Webliography :

	Byzantine Trebizond: a provincial literary landscape http://books.google.gr/books?id=gItVKrpx7sC&pg=PA29&lpg=PA29&dq=Byzantine+Trebizond:+a+Provincial+Literary+Landscape&source=bl&ots=2iyJEe7-Rn&sig=96pfyTARq2WLNvhVg_LSXsrY0jk&hl=el&ei=5e6ITNaoEomaOoKwKkC&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&resnum=5&ved=0C
--	---

Glossary :

	chrysobull (gold seal) Imperial document of the Byzantine state which was so named because it bore the gold seal of the emperor.
	doukas (lat. dux) Antiquity: Roman military commander who, in some provinces, combined military and civil functions. Byzantium: a higher military officer. From the second half of the 10th c. the title indicates the military commander of a larger district. After the 12th c., doukes were called the governors of small themes.

 emir

(from Arabic amir) Emir meaning "commander" or "general", later also "prince". Also a high title of nobility or office in some Turkic historical states.

 katholikon

The main church in a monastic complex, heart of the monastic activity.

 Limnia

Byzantine city on the shore of the Black Sea, close to Cerasous (later it ceased to be coastal, due to deposition of silt from the local rivers). It was a major trade port.

 megas domestikos

Supreme military commander of the imperial army. High-ranking title which was generally given to close relatives of the emperor.

 megas doukas

The commander of the Byzantine fleet (from 1092 onwards). In the Late Byzantine period, the title of the megas doukas was assigned to the highest officials of the imperial administration/army.

 megas stratopedarches

Superior officer responsible for the provision of equipment and supplies for the military forces of the byzantine empire of Nicaea.

 paroikos

(Byz.) Dependent peasants, usually on estates of large landowners or on ecclesiastical estates.

 pinkernes

[also pikernes or epikernes, possibly from the Latin pincerna, a word deriving from the greek verb epikerannymi, meaning to mix (wine)]. Cup-bearer of the palace. Official at the personal service of the emperor. In the Late Byzantine years, the pinkernes was a very honorary title, while in the 14th century it was awarded to very important figures, such as Alexios Philanthropenos.

 protovestiarios

(and protovestiarites) Honorary title given to high-ranking officials and future emperors during this period. The protovestiarios was originally responsible for the imperial wardrobe, but in the 9th-11th centuries the holders of the title could command an army or conduct negotiations with foreign states.

 Virgin the Unfading Rose

(Rhodon to Amaranton) In Byzantine art, the iconographic scheme with the Virgin Mary crowned, holding a standing Christ Child also crowned and vested imperial garments. Occasionally other iconographic elements are included, such as angelic orders and, most often, a rose in the hand of the Virgin.

Sources

Nicephoros Gregoras, Historia Romana, Bekker, I. – Schopen, L. (ed.), Nicephori Gregorae, Historiae Byzantinae 1 (Corpus Scriptorum Historiae Byzantinae, Bonn 1830).

Lampros, S. (ed.), «Ανέκδοτον χρυσόβουλον Αλεξίου Γ' του Μεγάλου Κομνηνού αυτοκράτορος της Τραπεζούντος», Νέος Ελληνομνημων 2 (1905), pp.196-198.

Lampsides, O. (ed.), Ανδρέου Λιβαδηνού Βίος και Έργα (Athens 1975).

Miklosich, F. – Müller, J. (ed.), Acta et diplomata Graeca Medii Aevi sacra et profana 3 (Wien 1865).

Miklosich, F. – Müller, J. (ed.), Acta et diplomata Graeca Medii Aevi sacra et profana 5 (Wien 1887).

Bryer, A. (ed.) "Some Trapezuntine Monastic Obits, 1368- 1563", Revue des Études Byzantines 34 (1976), pp. 125-138.

Zakynthinos, D.A. (ed.), Le Chrysobulle d'Alexis III Comnene, Empereur de Trébizonde en faveur des Venitiens (Paris 1932).

Λαούρδας, Β. (ed.), "Μητροφάνους, Βίος του αγίου Διονυσίου του Αθωνίτου", Αρχαίον Πόντου 21 (1956), pp. 43-79.

Άγιος Ευγένιος Τραπεζούντος, Rosenquist, J.O. (ed.), The Hagiographical Dossier of St. Eugenios of Trevizond in Codex Athous Dionysiou 154. A Critical Edition with Introduction, Translation, Commentary and Indexes (Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis 3, Uppsala 1996).

Oikonomides, N. (ed.), Actes de Dionysiou, edition. diplomatique (Archives de l'Athos 4, Paris 1968).

Λαμπίδης, Ο. (ed.), "Μιχαήλ του Παναρέτου περί των Μεγάλων Κομνηνών", Αρχαίον Πόντου 22 (1958), pp. 5-128.

Chronological Table

5 October 1338: Birth of John, the future Alexios III Grand Komnenos

August 1341: Alexios III Grand Komnenos, his mother Irene of Trebizond and his brother Alexios are exiled in Constantinople

22 December 1349: John - the future Alexios III Grand Komnenos, and his mother, Irene of Trebizond, return to Trebizond

21 January 1350: Coronation of Alexios III Grand Komnenos in the katholikon of the monastery of St Eugenios

June 1350: Arrest of the megas stratopedarches Theodore Doranites (Pilelis) and the protobestiarios Constantine Doranites

January 1351: Conspiracy of Leon Kabasites against Alexios III Grand Komnenos

20 September 1351: Marriage of Alexios III Grand Komnenos and Theodora Kantakouzene Komnene, niece of the Byzantine emperor, John VI Kantakouzenos, at the katholikon of the monastery of St Eugenios

September 1351: Expedition led by Irene of Trebizond, mother of Emperor Alexios III, against Constantine Doranites in the area of Limnia

1352: Marriage of Maria Grand Komnene, sister of Alexios III Grand Komnenos, and the Amitiot emir Kutlu beğ

January 1352: Rebellion of the pinkernes John Tzanichites and occupation of the castle of Tzanicha

April 1352: Peace treaty between Alexios III Grand Komnenos and the pinkernes John Tzanichites

June 1354: Rebellion of the megas doux Niketas Scholares and occupation of Cerasous

May 1355: Expedition against the megas doux Niketas Scholares in Cerasous and recapture of Cerasous by Alexios III Grand Komnenos

August 1355: Recapture of Sorogaina by the duke of Chaldia, John Kabasites.

October 1356: Capture of Kegchrinas by the armies of Alexios III Grand Komnenos

27 November 1356: Unsuccessful expedition of Alexios III Grand Komnenos against Cherieane

11 November 1357: Attack of the emir of Chalybia, Ibrahim Haçi emir against the area of Palaioimatrouka

1358: Marriage of Theodora Grand Komnene, sister of Alexios III Grand Komnenos and the emir of Chalybia Ibrahim Haçi emir

After 1358: Marriage of Theodora Grand Komnene, widowed sister of Alexios III Grand Komnenos with the Byzantine Emperor John V Palaiologos

1360: Beginning of the construction of the castle of Koukos in Chaldia under the supervision of Alexios III / Attack of the Turcoman emir Hoça Latif/
Cancellation of the construction of the castle

1360-1365: Building of the Soumela Monastery by Alexios III Grand Komnenos

1361: Attack and plunder of Hoça Latif in Matrouka

October 1361: Unsuccessful attack of the Turcoman emir Ahi Anaypak against the castle of Golachas

1362: Building of the temple of St Phokas in Kordyle by Alexios III Grand Komnenos

27 October 1363: Murder attempt against Alexios III Grand Komnenos by the Kabasites and George Scholares in the area of Katabatos

1364: Chrysobull with the privileges bestowed upon Venetian merchants / Skirmish between Genoese and Venetians in the meytan / Chrysobull with privileges to the Soumela Monastery

1365: Chrysobull containing privileges bestowed upon the monastery of St George Choutouras from Alexios III Grand Komnenos

1367: Marriage of Anna Grand Komnene, daughter of Alexios III Grand Komnenos to the king of Iberia, Bagrat V / Chrysobull containing privileges bestowed upon Venetian merchants

After 1367: Retraction of the privileges given to Venetian merchants

- 1369: Turcoman attack in Golacha / Occupation of the castle
- 1370: Victory of Alexios III Grand Komnenos over the Turcomans in the area of Marmara
- 1371: Chrysobull transferring the proceeds of the village of Chorobe to George Doranites
- 1373: Unsuccessful expedition of Alexios III Grand Komnenos against Cheriane
- 1374: Founding of the monastery of St Dionysios in Mount Athos by Alexios III Grand Komnenos
- November 1375: Campaign of the Venetians against Alexios III Grand Komnenos, led by Marco Giustiniani da S. Polo
- After November 1375: Commercial treaty between Venice and the Empire of Trebizond / The emperor's debt to Venice is reduced by half
- 1376: Decoration with frescoes of the katholikon of the monastery of Panagia Theoskepastos commissined by Alexios III Grand Komnenos
- 6 September 1377: Marriage of the son of Alexios III Grand Komnenos to the Georgian princess Koulskanhad
- 1378: Construction of the monastery of St Laurentios in Pelion by Alexios III Grand Komnenos
- 8 October 1379: Marriage of Theodora Grand Komnene, daughter of Alexios III Grand Komnenos, to the Tacedin, emir of Limnia
- February 1380: Successful expedition against the Tziapnid Turks
- 1380: Attack of the Kipnites Turks against Limnia and occupation of the castles
- After 1380: Marriage of the daughter of Alexios III Grand Komnenos to Muthharten, Turcoman ruler of Paipert and Kelntzene
- After 1380: Marriage of the daughter of Alexios III to Osman Karayuluk, son of Maria Grand Komnene and Kutlu beğ
- After 1380: (Alleged) marriage of a daughter of Alexios III to Suleyman Haçi emir of Chalybia
- 1386: Chrysobull bestowing privileges upon the monaster of Vazelon
- 20 March 1390: Death of Alexios III Grand Komnenos in Trebizond / Enthronement of Alexios IV Grand Komnenos

Auxiliary Catalogs

List of the emperors of Trebizond

Alexios I (1204 -1222)

Andronikos I (Gidon) (1222 - 1235)

John I (Axouchos) (1235 -1238)

Manuel II (1238 -1263)

Andronikos II (1263 -1266)

George (Planos) (1266 - 1280)

John II (1280 -1285)

Theodora (1285)

John II (again 1285 - 1297)

Alexios II (1297 -1230)

Andronikos III (1330 -1332)

Manuel II (1332)

Basil (1332 -1340)

Eirene Palaiologina (1340 - 1341)

Anna (Anachoutlou) (1341-1342)

John III (1342-1344)

Michael (1344 -1349)

Alexios III (1349 - 1390)

Manuel III (1390 -1417)

Alexios IV (1417 - 1429)

John IV (1429 - 1458)

Alexios V (1458)

David (1458-1461)